

Abstract of the Disclosure

Method for assembling into turbine sets turbine components having internal cooling passages. The turbine components are classified according to flow capability through the internal cooling passages and turbine sets are assembled in which the turbine components have the same flow capability classification.